NEW POLICY CASE: DIGITAL GOVERNMENT IN ARGENTINA

Policy-makers, practitioners and researchers, as well as for use in the classroom.

Today we launch the first ever Bennett Institute Case, focused on digital government in Argentina. The Case examines two core themes and the politics of modernisation. It is designed for practitioners and researchers, as well as for use in the policy classroom.

Co-authored by Dr. Tanya Filer, Dr. Antonio Weiss and Juan Cacace, the Case features insights from Andrés Ibarra, Deputy Chief of Cabinet, Michelle Aguero, Secretary for Social Affairs and Development, and other key stakeholders.

The Digital State Project sets out both to lead policy research and to provide a forum for broad-ranging discussion on the opportunities and challenges of the digital transformation of public sectors globally. 2018-19 has been an action-packed year, and we are excited to share some of the highlights with you.

In May 2019, the project hosted a Digital Experimentation Forum at Marlborough House, London. The Forum was moderated by Dr. Dennis Grube, this year’s Adviser, and the Advisory Board of the Trust and Technology Initiative and the Advisory Board of the Bennett Institute.

In September we welcome 2 new members to the 2019-20 Affiliated Researchers cohort. Richard Pope and Thomas Gara will both bring outstanding policy expertise. Richard will be working on digital and data in government. Antonio will be looking at user-centricity and the politics of modernisation. It is designed for practitioners and researchers, as well as for use in the policy classroom.

As the Digital State Project grows, learns and reflects, we welcome feedback and discussion. If you do not wish to receive further updates from the Digital State Project, please email oce@bennettinstitute.cam.ac.uk.

Welcome to the Digital State
Year in Review 2018-19

The Digital State Project sets out both to lead policy research and to provide a forum for broad-ranging discussion on the opportunities and challenges of the digital transformation of public sectors globally. 2018-19 has been an action-packed year, and we are excited to share some of the highlights with you.

In May 2019, the project hosted a Digital Experimentation Forum at Marlborough House, London. The Forum was moderated by Dr. Dennis Grube, this year’s Adviser, and the Advisory Board of the Trust and Technology Initiative and the Advisory Board of the Bennett Institute.

In September we welcome 2 new members to the 2019-20 Affiliated Researchers cohort. Richard Pope and Thomas Gara will both bring outstanding policy expertise. Richard will be working on digital and data in government. Antonio will be looking at user-centricity and the politics of modernisation. It is designed for practitioners and researchers, as well as for use in the policy classroom.

As the Digital State Project grows, learns and reflects, we welcome feedback and discussion. If you do not wish to receive further updates from the Digital State Project, please email oce@bennettinstitute.cam.ac.uk.

Visit Bennett Institute for Public Policy Cambridge